Work Experience (brief summary):

I founded and directed Organizational Development Services at University of California, Davis, where I specialized in helping leaders and departments increase their resilience for moving through conflict, change, and uncertainty. For three decades, I have worked as internal and external OD consultant, team and leader coach, meeting and retreat facilitator, interpersonal skills trainer, and instructional designer. I have also worked as a workplace, family, special education, and community mediator in a variety of settings.

Why Omaha ODN is important to me:

As an external consultant, I get isolated too easily, and Omaha ODN keeps me connected to like-minded professionals I can learn from and grow with.

Dream Job:

Choreographing modern and sacred dance works with a multi-generational dance troupe.

Famous Person I'd Most Like to Meet:

Rumi
